Executive summary

The main tasks of WG4 is maintaining and assisting the information flow to members and stakeholders.

Website : The website is continuously updated with new data. The “Downloads” page, both members and public, was reorganised during the summer 2017 so as to ease access to data. News posts have been sent regularly so as to keep users informed of all new data on the website and the opportunities offered by STSM and the Training School. Recent posts include a CfP ASLIB Journal of Information Management (15 December), the ENRESSH November Newsletter (29 November) and the WG1 Report on Projects on SSH Scholars’ Notions of Research Quality in Participating Countries (4 November)

Social Networks: ENRESSH posts regularly of both Facebook and Twitter. Such posts include a series of posts with photos went out during the meeting in Helsinki (8 December), a post announcing a major conference in China at which several ENRESSH members were speaking (25th September) and information on project work following an STSM (28th September). Regularity depends on events both within and outside the action that are considered pertinent for members and stakeholders. Posts on the web site and social media are generally simultaneous.

Newsletter: A second newsletter was published in November and is available on line. An intermediary news flash was published in October so as to get news of the Training School to a wider audience.

At the meeting of the WG4 in Antwerp, then through remote cooperation, the objectives for the next work period have been defined as follows:

- Improvements on the existing website with new photographs from ENRESSH meetings and showing ENRESSH people
- Full update of the website with new functions for improving speed and managing data.
- Create and print a flyer for distribution at conferences.
- Put the separate Zotero bibliographies online in a single open resource.
- Maintain a flow of newsletters at a rhythm of three per annum.
